

Veronica Ebner started her career as a court reporter and continued for 10 years before being diagnosed with breast cancer at the age of 34. After completing a year of chemo treatments, she changed professions in order to be at home more with her husband and her three boys. She moved from Thousand Oaks into Newbury Park and promptly saw a need for a playgroup in her new area. She started and organized the Dos Vientos Mom's Club where she met many moms in the area and put together all ages of playgroups, activities, camping trips and field trips where moms and dads could have a great support group, learn about being new parents together with others and make lifelong friends.

Veronica strongly believes in the power of playgroups as she is still close with the other moms she met in a playgroup that started when her oldest was 5 weeks old. They have shared laughter, joy, tears, death, heartbreak, subsequent births and even her own diagnosis and survival together. That group provided a need that no other group could fill, and she is deeply grateful to her playgroup for all their friendship and support throughout the last 14 years!

Currently, she lives with her husband, Brett, of 17 years and her three boys, Austin (14), Connor, (12) and Chase (9). She looks forward to passing along her experience and love of children with Outside the Box parents.
